WELCOME TO MANCHESTER HUCKLETREE. THIS IS YOUR INVITATION TO CREATE.

Huckletree, is a workspace accelerator based at the Express Building. Providing beautifully conceived spaces, Huckletree will give occupiers of the Express building unique access to a range of facilities including podcast booths, meeting and events spaces, meditation studios, networking events and some of the best coffee in Manchester. Express Building and Huckletree is a combination like no other.

DIGITAL CONNEC- TIVITY

Whether you're uploading, downloading, video-calling or 4K-streaming, the Express Building's future-proofed tech infrastructure will keep things swift and seamless.

From the chic vibrancy of Spinningfields to the Grade II-listed grandeur of St. Peter's Square, Manchester is a city that's evolved into a serious international player.

2ND

Manchester named second most attractive UK city for tech investment.

£500M

Manchester named as Europe's fastest-growing tech hub. The city attracted more than £500m in venture capital funding last year, putting it ahead of Cambridge.

105,000

The number of students in Manchester. The city has the strongest graduate retention rate - currently standing at 70% - outside of London.

THIS CITY'S ¹⁷ TIME IS NOW

Number of consecutive years that Manchester's office market has seen more TMT take-up than any other city outside of London.

15TH

The position Manchester achieved on Lonely Planet's 'Best Places to Visit in 2016' list. Sitting ahead of Nashville and Rome, it was the only UK city to make the countdown.

80

Number of FTSE 100 companies represented in Manchester. As of August 2017, more new businesses are being created in Manchester than in London.

88.8

Manchester's score - out of a possible 100 - on The Economist's annual Global Liveability Survey. It was named the best place to live in the UK, based on infrastructure, healthcare, education, stability, culture and environment.

12TH

Most popular global destination for FDI.

MANCHESTER AT ITS BEST

The Northern Quarter and Ancoats has been a focal point of the Manchester's post-millennial renaissance, and its reputation as the city's 'creative quarter' is now firmly in place.

Ancoats, once the bustling epicentre of Manchester's world-beating cotton industry, has rapidly and dramatically reinvented itself as a hot-spot for culture, business and creativity.

GREAT ANCOATS STREET

Great Ancoats Street is due to be transformed into a tree lined 'European-style' boulevard with new and improved pedestrian crossings.

The bespoke apartments, the on-trend bars, the buzzed-over eateries, the feisty start-ups building game-changer apps... Ancoats is where the next phase of Manchester's spectacular 21st-century boom plays out - with the Express Building as its gleaming emblem.

NEARBY AMENITIES

SOLITA

Home of the Big Manc, Solita offers high-end re-imaginings of American diner staples: cheeseburgers, hot dogs, fried chicken etc. Bring an appetite.

ELNECOT

With a 44ft solid-concrete bar as its centrepiece, the recently opened Elnecot is Ancoats through and through: stylish, sophisticated and a wee bit eccentric.

‘Iconic’ is a descriptor that gets thrown around far too freely these days, but Manchester’s Express Building is one of few landmarks in the city that can genuinely lay claim to the label.

Completed in 1939 and revered ever since by locals and architecture enthusiasts alike, this is a building that’s been crying out for 21st-century rebirth; to be restored to its former glory as a workspace imbued with all the best characteristics of the city that surrounds it.

“QUITE TAKEN
BY IT”

Considered radical at the time of its unveiling in 1939, the Express Building was designed in the futuristic ‘streamline moderne’ style by the pioneering Sir Owen Williams, whose other fearlessly forward-looking works include the Dorchester Hotel.
